THE INGALLS MANAGERS CONFIDENT On Wednesday the joint session will be held when all will depend on the ability of the Alliance managers to keep their forces. If they succeed in this the session may end bevent this. One of these prophets said: leading men in each post.
This will get around the objection that the G. A. R. is non-political. The Ingalls organization is in the hands of five of the shrewdest men that ever went into a contest. Livingston, President of the New York Alliance, is here using his influence with the soldier elesoldiers. This is having an influence momentarily at least. The Alliance is preserving the strictest privacy holding their meetings in dark rooms and it is difficult to get anything out of them unless one has the Alliance birthmark, the doubtless the ablest man of the Alliance, Simpson is ruled out from the contest by the Alliance, that no member elect to Congress shall be eligible to the United States Senate.

SOLDIERS' PETITIONS. soldiers of Kansas, asking the Kansas Legis-lature to re-elect Senator Ingalls because of his faithful services to the veterans, were represented by Alliance members and were for the purpose of influencing the Alliance men who are ex-soldiers, of whom there are about forty. There is no reason to believe whatever that this pressure on the ground of Ingalis' interest in the old soldiers' cause is breaking into the Alliance ranks. Represen tative Duncan said this morning that hundreds of old soldiers in his county were opposed to the election of Ingalis and he knew it to be the same in every county in the State, and the soldier petitions gotten up by the Re publicans would not have any effect.

Everything depends on to-night's caucus of the Alliance. Some Republicans admit that if the Alliance agrees upon a candidate there is no hope for Ingalls. There has been no attempt as yet to man Chase, who is the leader of the Alliance man Chase, who is the leader of the Alliance men, said this morning that the caucus would be governed by the majority and that the candidate who develops the most strength on the first ballot will undoubtedly be nomi-nated. They are so determined in their opposition to Ingalis that any one of the six candidates before the Alliance caucus would be acceptable. Speaker Fider to the six candidates before the Alliance caucus would be acceptable. Speaker Elder is this morning still conceded to be the strongest Alliance candidate and is doing the mo active work. Judge Pfeffer also has a strong following and will be second in the race. Willets has about twenty votes. Judge Doster, Gen. Rice and John W. Briedenthal will have complimentary votes, but are not considered in the race.

THE SEARCH.

The searching party that scoured the woods around Ellendale finally ran on to Murphy and chased him quite a distance, and one of and chased him quite a distance, and one of the men, Tony Maglil, got a shot at him, but missed him and the fellow got away for the time. He slipt around some way and got back to Vali's, but of course we didn't know anything of that then. He probably supposed that the girl had not recognized him or that he had killed her and forever shut her mouth even if he had been recognized, and concluded that he could get back home and no one would ever know that it was he who had committed the assault. After nearly four hours of searching we gathered in Gratiot again and then I proposed that we search vail's house. Some of the searchers nad already been there but without finding him. It seems, though, that they searched only the lower part of the house and the stable. Sergt. Kennedy and two police officers and myself then went to Vail's and one of the officers and myself went to the residence, while Sergt. Kennedy and the other officer searched the barn. nothing suspicious down stairs and then I suggested the garret, asking Mr. Vail how we could get up there. He said that we would have to go outside to get up there, but he didn't think it was any use, as he was pretty sure Murphy was not up there. We asked what made him think so and he answered: 'I don't know whether he's there or not for sure, but I think he isn't there because he left right after supper and hasn't come back.' We asked where he slept and Mr. and Mrs. Vail both said that he sometimes slept in the barn and sometimes in the garret. The officer then said: 'We'll go up in the garret.' the crowd outside: 'It's all right; she recognized him.'

"THE CLUB.
"Then we went back to the place where the assault was committed and about ten feet from there we found Murphy's club, the one with which he had struck Miss Daly. It was about two feet long and had been cut from an apple tree in Mr. Vall's orchard, where Murphy had been pruntag trees. He had bored as apple tree in Mr. Vail's orchard, where Murphy had been pruning trees. He had bored a hole in one end and put a string through it, like the policemen do with their clubs, and it was just about as large as a policeman's night club. He struck three blows with it, as that many were heard by a man some distance away, and Miss Daly's head showed that she had been cut across the forehead with a club or heavy blunt instrument in three places. The brute's finger marks were on her throat and he had rammed his fingers into her mouth to prevent her his fingers into her mouth to prevent her from screaming. She was also scratched in the face and her dress and peticoat were torn entirely from her body. When Magill fired at him, he dropped a little bundle he had and it proved to be her dress and underskirt. The club we found was recognized by Mr. Vall as

As I said before, Murphy has been in the Work-house, and he often gets drunk and disgraces himself at Gratiot. Only yesterday afternoon I saw him swaggering along, waving his hat and swearing on Scanlan avenue."

Mr. George W. McBride of 'the Shapleigh Hardware Co. also gives Murphy a bad name.

'I have lived there only a few months,' he said to-day, 'and never saw the darkey until yesterday, but I have learned enough about him. He has terrorized the neighborhood over since he came there, and the women ever since he came there, and the women have always been afraid of him. I don't know what he does for Vall except keep his cows and do the house chores; but one thing which added very much to his unpopularity was driving stray ows home and charging $2 or $3 for keeping them until the owners called for them. We hunted in the woods nearly four hours for him last night and if we had caught him we'd him last hight and if we had caught him we'd have strung him up in no time."

Miss Tillie Daly has been living with a fam-ily at Ellendale at No. 7246 Lanham avenue and is about 19 years old. She enjoys an ex-cellent reputation and is much liked by all who know her.

HEADQUARTERS,
DIVISION OF THE MISSOURI, IN THE FIELD,
FINE RIDGE, S. D., Jan. 26, 1891.

Special Orders No. 28.
The following orders are hereby issued for the information and guidance of all concerned:
The First Infanty Battalion of the Sixth Cavalry and Battalion of the Ninth Cavalry will remain in the field unless ordered, as follows: After the Brule Indians, under charge of Capt. Lee, have taken their departure and have been en route two days, the Sixth Cavalry will proceed to Fort Niobrara, and there take station. The commanding officer will furnish Capt. Lee with such detachment as he may request to accompany him to Rose Bud Agency.

A detachment of the Sixth Cavalry, under a commissioned officer, will also be sent with a party of Indians, going to Cheyenne River Agency, S. D., with the Indian Iron Thunder. On the completion of that duty it will return to its station at Fort Niobrara. The remainder of the command will exercise the same military supervision over the Indians at this place that it has maintained during the last few months and have them abandon all appearances or purposes of hostility and return to their former homes. Should it be found that any of the hostile element still retains arms they will be required to return them into their gant's hands as others have done.

All Indians, except those in the military service, friendly as well as others, will be informed that they will not be expected or permitted to carry arms. At the end of thirty days should tranquillity be maintained the First Infantry will be returned to Department of California, and at the end of sixty days, should the same condition of peace exist, Maj. Henry will withdraw his command to Fort Robinson, the same to be replaced at Pine Bidge by other troops, should circumstances require. In the meantime Maj. Henry is authorized to visit Fort Robinson or make any changes in the personnel of his command that he may deem advisable between the troops at Fort Robinson and troops with him in the field.

By command of Mai.-Gen. Miles,

MARION P. MAUS, Captain First Infantry, aide. THE WASHINGTON DELEGATION. Gen. Miles has selected the chiefs who are going to Washington. The list is as follows: Young-Man-Afraid-of-His-Horses, American Horse, Fire Thunder, Hump of the Friendlies, Little Wound, Big Road, He Dog, Two Strike, High Hawk and High Pipe of the hostiles.

The interpreters will be Louis Shoughran and Baptiste Pourier (Big Bat).

Some surprise is expressed over the selection, it was thought Red Cloud would certainly go, and Short Bull and Kicking Bear have been among the most prominent hostiles, while Turning Bear is the idol of the fighting young men. Gen. Miles has not given his reasons for omitting them. He takes with him to Chicago forty Indians, who will go to Washington later under the care of the him to Chicago forty Indians, who will go to Washington later under the care of the War Department. The ten chiefs were given outfits of clothing this morning. When they leave here they will be under the direction of Special Agent Lewis, who has been sent here for fhat purpose by the Interior Department. The Indian officers have been placed in the hands of the War Department, yet when the chiefs are about to start an agent of the Interior Department is sent here to take charge of them. Gen. Miles expected and desired that they should go the Capital under the care of a military officer. Since they desired that they should go the Capital under the care of a military officer. Since they have been here the military officers have conducted all the negotiations. It is openly said here that Agent Lewis was sent out because the Interior Depart-ment wishes to control and revise everything that reaches the public from those chiefs concerning their grievances and I know posi-tively that Special Agent Lewis has specific instructions to conceal from the newspapers the route he will take and to not permit either the chiefs or the interpreters to be inter-viewed. There are strong hints that this

The WOUNDED.

Thirteen of the wounded Indians have feft the hospital and returned to their tepees, and only three remain. They are under charge of Surgeon Brady. Kicking Bear visited the hospital yesterday and told all who could bear moving to go home. He said High Bear would be their medicine man and he would cure them and not be pushing probes into them.

When the delegation reaches Washington it will unanimously ask for the appointment of Mr. James H. Cook of Harrison, Neb., as of Mr. James H. Cook of Harrison, Neb., as their agent.

Mr. Cook is comparatively a young man, very intelligent and he has been brought up on the frontier. He is a man of irrepreachable character and wealthy, and the statement is made here by every one that he would only accept the position because he has an interest in the welfare and progress of the Indians. A big council was held last night and the delegation was instructed to ask for Mr. Cook's appointment.

D. H. ROBERT.

The ladies of St. Louis and vicinity say they have become so accustomed to Barr's daily bargain chats that they turn to this page firstily every afternoon as a matter of course.

A certain writer says "woman so to speak inclines to be a species and man an individual." Now we venture to assert that that man had no female relatives and that he was a crusty old bachelor. That's always the way! It's the man who knows nothing about women that does all the writing and preaching on a subject that wiser men let severely alone. That writer ought to have been at Barr's to-day; he'd have found a distinct individuality in the way each woman scrambled after the bargains on table number 14. There'll be some left for to-morrow; they're odds and ends of plushes, silks, laces, etc., for fancy work, all going at 5 cents on the dollar.

Folks take you at your own valuation; but when it comes to dry goods they want to apply the seeing test. That's the reason we invite you to come down to-morrow and see a lot of new spring suitings that we're going to sell at 20 and 25 cents a yard. Some are 40 inches wide. There's black and white plaids, tufted effects, plain smooth surface, rugged surface stripes, and all the stylish combinations of colors in plaids that are seen in the highprice novelties. Nothing in this sale is "trashy;" all are the newest colorings. It also includes the most desirable shades in plain cashmeres.

Some dry goods, like some people, would be dear at any price. Barr's don't deal in that sort. Barr's sell nothing that isn't worth having. Some folks may think that French zephyr flannelette isn't worth having because it's so cheap—only 15 cents— but just let them catch sight of it, that's all; house gowns, blouses, girls' dresses; it's just as good as if you paid double. So's that cotton that we offer this week at ten cents a yard. Choice of two brands-Barr's XL and Dwight's Just right for general family use. Will not wash up harsh and thick; fine, even threads; a nice soft muslin; guaranteed to give excellent wear.

Barr's Bargania-New Torchon and Medici laces, hand-made, at 5 cents a yard; width up to 3 inches; a little nicer than that you've been paying twice as much for. Buttons for wash dresses, vegetable ivory, at 6 cents a dozen. Ladies' black farmer's satin petticoats for 90 cents and fine black alpaca skirts for $1.25; the price on each would be much more if we were not lookout for your interest. And, finally, a sale special of P. D. corsets. They are all a mite soiled, been handled too much or something of that sort; most of them are a traveler's samples; all the very finest made; no two alike, and the price begins at $1.50.

Red Hawk, the brother of the woman whose dead body has lain on the plains for many days. Indians found the bodies there and reported at headquarters that there had been another murder, but happily it was ascertained that the woman and her children were killed soon after the battle of Wounded Knee, and though murdered, persect the work has bettle was reading and not ps, it was while battle was raging, and not deliberately. The ravine is deep and through the center flows a little stream called White Horse Creek. It is one long, snaky sheet of ice now, but in milder weather the water fertilizes the soil and rank reeds grow along the brink. Looking down from the cliff above the soldiers saw the four bodies stretched ou the bare ground, face downwards. The other was well clad, but the chilen were almost naked, and it is a pitiful sight to see the there, so still, cold and them there, so still, cold and dead. Death has its horror always, but it seems worse than ever when it is met away out here on the lonely prairies, shut off it seems by the hills around from the world, from sympathy, from everything but its own beside the mother lay the dead chil dren, and the boy, a fine-looking lad, seemed to have crawled or been dragged to his mother's side. There may have been a strangely pathetic scene there before death The boy was shot through the head and must have died instantly. The mother was shot in the shoulder and the ball ranged wards for the murderers stood on the boy to his sister's side before she lay down

THE MURDERERS' TRAIL. would like to have the grave, and he pointed to the summit of a knoll. While the soldier were digging a grave that would hold all four.
Red Hawk hunted about and finally found tracks of shod hoofs. Only Government horses here are shod and these old tracks were significant. He found, too, the shell of a cartridge, such as only the soldiers and scouts use. He was quick to conclude that the women and boy were killed either by sol-diers or Cheyenne scouts and to the door of the latter he laid the crime, for the Cheyennes and Sloux are bitter enemies, and neither is so happy as when hunting and kill-ing the other. Red Hawk's conclusion probably correct, for the spot is three liles from the battle-field, and no small par-ess of soldiers have been there. The Chey-mes have been all through that country. "I heard of them the day after the battle," said Red Hawk, "and none of them were wounded. They went to a house further up, and they must have been leaving it when they were killed." As the bodies were born up the hillside, Red Hawk looked at them with tears in his eyes, but he was silent. All four were placed in one grave and a white cloth was thrown over The earth was thrown in and the were left to sleep in one grave. Red Hawk thanked Capt. Baldwin for burying them, and said, "It is hard for me to see this. I have tried to keep my heart good and I will try to how, but this discourages me," and his eyes filled with tears, his voice choked.

ON WOUNDED KNEE FIELD. From White Horse Creek the company re-turned to the agency, but several of the scouts, some civilians and the indomitable hotographer rode on to the battle field. The first view one gains of it riding up the trail is the knoll where the Hotchkiss gun wa planted, where now a long row of freshly-turned earth marks the grave of more than a hundred Indians. Standing near this monster gun the whole field is opened to view and it is strewn still with dead horses, torn clothing and blankets, the circles of ashes where tepees burned. Just below is the ra-vine where so many perished and all through it the snow is stained with blood. On the brink of the ravine I found some beads lying near a blood spot. A young squaw fell th and the beads were hers. A cross scratched in the earth marks the spot where Capt,

From the center of the big grove rises a staff which has rather an interesting history. While the Seventh Cayalry was at Wounded while the seventh dayary was at wounded knee, Troop C lost its guidon. Nothing was said about it. The discredit of hav-ing lost the company colors was not told abroad, and though they were not taken by the enemy, it has been a delicate matter by the enemy, it has been a delicate matter to speak to any member of Troop C about the guidon. Some one found it, there is not telling who, but whoever did planted the standard on the grave and the tattered ribbons are flying there now. It will be removed by the soldiers, for it looks like a boast to see those colors flying over the grave of the dead Indians, and surely no soldier could have rianted it there.

In the ravine where such deadly work was done is a water cut, a ditch about four feet wide and about as deep. In the snow which covers the bottom one can trace the footprints of an Indian who, in his light from the lattle-field, chose this shelf way. The cut ends abruptly, and just where it ends we found a blood-stained sheet and a few rags of clothing. On the snow was a dark red spo that told how that Indian's end had come. I mentioned this to a member of the Seventh, and was surprised to hear him say. "I saw that fellow shot. He had a good, safe place in the end of that water cut and when we were charging up the ravine, he sat there picking us off. Lieut. John Gresham of our troop, 'Johnny,' we call him, was riding along the edge of the ravine with his revolver at a 'raise pistol.'' The Indian had fired on us twice and, just as we came near him he fired again and shot John Costello dead. Just then Johnny lowered his revolver and fired, and Mr. Indian keeled over. Johnny got him just in time, for I had a bead on him, and a moment later I'd have had him." Spots like this are found over the whole field, and pieces of shell, broken wagons and remnants everywhere mark out for the sight seers the place where the battle of Wounder Knee was fought.

SPLENDID HORSEMANSHIP.

A number of the friendlies took out their best ponies at the request of some of the officers and gave an exhibition of horsemanship.

that probably could not be equaled in the world. It was no fancy riding, but every movement was adapted to some well defined and well understood purpose. There is no real discipline in an Indian force; there are no ranks, no organizations, no units of commend, each sub-chief being surunits of command, each sub-chief being sur rounded by his own immediate following, but in spite of this lack of cohesion, which would be fatal to a white force, the entire body can maneuver with perfect obedience to the wishes of the war chief. After the feats of horsemanship were over the Indians gave an example of the manner in which they could act in concert. One of their favorite methods of attack when they are in front of an inferior force is to ride rapidly round it, and pour a perfect hall of bullets from under the horse's neck.

SCIENTIFIC FIGHTERS. The Indian is before all things a scientific gghter, and always seeks cover where it can be obtained by any means whatever. In an open county his pony acts as his shield. A loop of rawhide is fastened to his horse's neck and the pommel of the saddle. Into this the Indian will drop his elbow, and holding the cantle with the foot will ride around an enemy and fire under his horse's neck, nearly the whole body being protected by that of the pony. The use of the loop allows both hands to be free to handle the Winchester. It is a matter of pride for an Winchester. It is a matter of pride for an Indian never to leave a dead or wounded indian never to leave a dead or wounded comrade in an enemy's hands, and when a body is to be rescued he throws aside his love of cover, and exposes himself with splendid recklessness. To pick up a heavy man from the ground and throw him upon a horse going at full speed is no easy task, but during the drill this ways don't time and excite during the drill this was done time and again

Two Indians are required. They turn their corses toward the body and rush forward at headlong speed, preserving their alignment perfectly. When they reach their prostrate comrade both stoop at the same instant, selze an arm or a leg, and by a single motion swing the body in front of one of the warriors. They never check their horses for an nstant, and never fail to swing the body lightly and easily from the ground to the horse's withers. In this drill the warriors took turns in picking up and being picked up. When drilling as wounded, the prostrate man assisted his rescuers by raising arms and legs. When drilling as dead, not only was no afforded, but positions were assumed which to be picked up by a rapidly moving horse

It apparently made no difference, however. as the wild riders would pick up their com-rade from any position and carry him off, their fleet ponies never slackening their pace. A more magnificent exhibition of horsenanship it would be difficult to imagine The Indians carry no drums or trumpets to war, but they seem to be able to communi cate with each separate body of men and to transmit orders with perfect ease and accu-

AN INDIAN ATTACK. An example was given of the way in which a battle was fought which might furnish some valuable hints to civilized soldiers. The scouting system is perfect. A scout will ap-pear on a distant hill, and by a few movenents will convey all the information in his possession to the chief. If he pulls his horse up, remains motionless for two or three seconds, and then proceeds at a walk, it means that there is no danger. If he dashes up and rides rapidly in a circle, it means that iles are in sight. A few waves of the arm will give notice of their number and location. Each band before going on a raid arranges a code of private signals, which are unintellisignals cannot be understood the enemy. In the tacti-maneuvers the chief pointed cal maneuvers the chief pointed out the position supposed to be held by the enemy, and then formed his line of battle. This line consisted of masses of men, more or ess detached from each other, each under the command of a sub-chief.

THE SIGNAL STSTEM.

To produce a moral effect the better mounted warriors went tearing over the ground, circling at full speed in front, flank and rear of this line, making a great show of force and appearing to be five times as numerou and appearing to be now times as numerous as they really were. At a given signal the whole line charged on the hostile force. At another signal it disintegrated, and scattered like leaves in a storm. Another word, a portion wheeled and dashed other word, a portion wheshed and dashed on a flank, to gather again at another signal. The plain was alive with flying warriors—now in groups, now single, at one moment lying flat on their horses' necks to escape the bullets, at the next massing and charging with flares wells. All through these compile with flerce yells. All through these compli-cated evolutions the horsemen were under he absolute control of their chief. The sig nal code is most religiously kept secret, and no white man has ever been able to obtain the key. This signal system is proteced by the most sacred medium, and the oath administered is never broken. Each chief has a small mirror suspended about his neck, and when the sun is shining can direct his warriors over miles of country by flashes thrown from it.

Dr. Broome's Resolution of Censure Causing Trouble.

DR. LUTZ SAYS IT WAS INSPIRED B THE GREEN-EVED MONSTER.

Prominent Physicians Give Their Opinion on the Question of Ethics Raised in the Medical Society Saturday Night-Pros pect of a Lively Time at the Next Meet ing of the Society.

The medical fraternity is stirred up over he resolution introduced by Dr. G. It has given the fraternity food for gossip and comment and comes as a momentary re lef to the thought and study being given th Koch lymph and bacilli, which are the indi cause of

The majority, however, did know that Dr. Bry son was meant as he was the first physician to receive a portion of the Koch lymph in this city and the first to experiment with it.

A QUESTION ON ETHICS.

The results of that experiment were related in the Post-Dispatch, and the facts were secured from Dr. Bryson, mostly through questioning and on condition that the name of the patient be withheld and that the case be treated with as little attention as possi-ble. Whether Dr. Bryson had permitted an interview or not on the subject of his experiment the facts in the case would have been printed as they were known before ne was seen. "This Koch remedy is a most peculiar "This Koch remedy is a most peculiar thing. It is so different from other remedies and cures," replied Dr. Lutz. "The press of the world had possession of it considerably in advance of the medical journals and was. even ahead of the medical world in diffusing a knowledge of the medicine. The lay press. of the merits of the medicine. The lay pres if such I may call it, did not wait as it some-times does for a decease or cure to be dis-cussed in the medical journals before it took it up, but on the contrary in this case of Koch's lymph it was the informant The press was the he presence of Koch's he large cities before the for the world. The press first to discover the presence lymph in many of the large cities raternity was aware of it, and it has come to be so considered that the public is entitled to the results and a full knowledge of all tests. With this idea in my mind I hold that a me who has something and uses it, has an advantage of a man who deals in glittering generalities and has nothing."

"Are you in favor of that resolution offered Saturday night being adopted by the

'I am down on a man, I mean a physician "I am down on a man, I mean a physician or doctor, who will rush into print and have their names put into the papers. But here is a man who had something to impart, something which he added to the enlightenment of the world on a most absorbing subject and study. He had something positive to communicate and did not deal in clittering seneralities. Everyone is against a resolution such as Dr. Broome's. It mentions no names

"Can the party making the accusation go before the committee and give the name after failing to comply with the rules regarding the manner in which charges shall be filed?"

"I think he can. The proper way to have made the charges was to have them presented in writing to the President, without mentioning names or reading the charge in public, and after the committee has the case in its hands give the name of the offending member. From the peculiar way in which this matter was brought to the notice of the society I feel assured that the green-eyed monster has a great deal to do with it. I wish I had a copy of the rules and by-laws of the society here and could show you what constitutes a violation of the ethics, but not having one here, I will say from what I know of the code that there has been no violation of the rules and that this disturbance has been raised through the spirit of the green-eyed monster, as I said before. It hink you wil learn as much on questioning other, and h fact nearly all the members of the Medical Society."

questioning other, and h fact nearly all the members of the MedicalSociety."

DR. OUTTEF TALKS.

Dr. W. B. Outten, another member of the society, was seen and asked what he thought of the resolution offered Saturday night, to censure a member for ellightening the public on a deeply interesting medical discovery, and the result of experiments with it.

"Well, really," said Dr. Outten, "the proper place to discuss the matter is at the meetings of the society, Any outside talk is calculated to only engender animosities and create unpleasantness. Dr. Bryson is a physician of great reputation, of high standing in the medical world and in the community. The society will do him justice. He is familiar with the ethics of the society and I am sure he would not, as of the society and I am sure he would not, as a member of the society, ignore rules he has lived up to and respected for so long a pe-

"Is it not a fact, doctor, that the Koch lymph is a peculiar case in medical discoveries, and that the public are almost up with the medical world in the knowledge of the

"Yes that is true. The public press has done a great deal of good in the medical world and to the public. Its enterprise in this matter must be commended. It did more than any other agent to bring out and digest the Brown-Sequard elixir and to report its fail-ures. In the matter of the Koch lymph it has kept abreast if not ahead of the medical world in reporting the results of experiments and in interviewing the leading physicians of Europe and this country on the discovery."

"That being the case, do you consider it advertising or an ecstatic scramble after dollars to make known the result of an ex-riment with Koch's lymph? periment with Koch's lymph?"

"The line between those who do advertise and who do not advertise has grown so infinitesimally small of late that it is hard to determine where it begins or ends, but it is generally thought that the man who dodges the code is all with:

These may be some diversit. ode is all right. There may be some divers fied opinions in this case, but I am inclined to believe that you will find a unanimity of ex-pression in favor of Dr. Bryson."

DR. BAUDUY EXPRESSES HIMSELE. Dr. W. Keating Bauduy, a member of the Medical Society, and son of Dr. A. K. Bau-duy, ex-President of that body, though absent from the meeting last Saturday night, was aware of the proceedings, and had n up his mind as to the position he would take on Dr. Broomes' startling resolution.

"We will be on hand next Saturday even-ing," said the doctor. "I cannot understand how under any construction of parliamentary law any attention could be paid to the resolution or how it could be sent to the Committee on Ethics. It is not the proper way to proceed in censuring a member and is more like a damaging anonynous letter addressed to the society to do ham. Censure Dr. Bryson for giving to the public a bit of informa-tion it was entitled to? Why, it is absurd. The reporter who called on the doctor for the result of hs experiment with Koch's lymph had a right to ask all the particulars as far as the facts went but, of course, not as far as the physician's discovery the world at large is eager and yearning to hear more about and which by all rights it should become perfectly familiar with. Dr. Bryson is an authority on ethics and would not consciously violate the slightest rule. If Dr. Bryson is to be censured what is to be done to Dr. Starkloft, Dr. Outten, Dr. Bond and others, who, recog-nizing the right the public had to a knowiedge of what was being done with the new discovery, gave it freely without stint. There are three men as eminent in their profession and as true to the code of ethics as Dr. Bryson, and what is to be done with them if Dr. Bryson is censured. There is some personality in that resolution, and on may look forward to the next meeting for Several Republican Senators Vote With the Democrats-The Silver Pool.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 26.-The Senate met at noon in continuation of the legislative day of Thursday last, the pending question being the resolution to amend the rule viding a method of closing debate. Mr. Morgan resumed the floor and continued his argument begun on Saturday, in opposition to the pro-posed rule and to the elections bill, both of which measures he claimed (on the authority of the New York Times) to be for the advanceof the New York Times) to be for the advance-ment of Mr. Harrison's project for election. At 10:20 Mr. Morgan yielded for a motion by Mr. Wolcott to proceed to the consideration of the apportionment bill. Mr. Dolph moved to lay that motion on the table and the motion was rejected amid much applause. Yeas, 84; nays. 35. (Senators Cameron, Jones of Nevada, Stewart, Teller, Washburn and Wolcott voted no with the Democrats, and Mr. Ingalls was paired with Mr. Sanders.) The vote was then taken on Mr. Wolcott's motion to take up the apportionment bill,

THE SILVER POOL INVESTIGATION.
WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 26.—The Silver
Pool Committee has still a long list of witnesses who are to be examined. So far the committee has done very well as far as the members agreeing is concerned, the first sign of a disagreement being over the summoning of a certain witness. The investigation has been going just one week but in that time more has been developed they were expected and a large developed than was expected and a large number of Senators, Representatives and Government officials have been found who took a few silver certificates on margins just in the way of little investments. JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Jan. 26.—Senator Es-enchied introduced a bill this afternoon to ompel the Boards of Police Commissione recreation days in each calendar month to members of the force. go to show that there is almost a unanimous opposition to the measure and further than this, the building interests propose to make a determined fight against it. Prominent officials of the Exchange have gone on record, in letters written to this city, that they would prefer to see the law repealed entirely than amended in the shape Senator Stone proposes. It is hardly expected that the bill will be reported before the builders get the hearing

PARKER'S CIGARETTE BILL.

The Parker cigarette bill has been favorably reported and is now on the House calendar, ready to be taken up in its turn. This bill makes it a misdemeanor for any person to sell a minor under the age of 17 years cigarettes or tobacco in any other form. The bill is aimed particularly at the cigarette and it may be that it will be amended to hit it exclusively. The chances of the bill are considered first-class, but it is difficult to predict how it will come out in the Senate.

A Pleasant Affair.

A very charming tea was given on Saturday by Mr. Joseph Brown, the City Auditor, at his pretty home on Olive street, near Grand avenue, in honor of Miss Bertha Creighton, the beautiful and gifted girl actress who played Mildred, in "Aunt Jack," at the Grand Opera-house last week. The appointments of the table were perfect, as was the menu. Jacquiminot and yellow roses, twined with smilax, gave the touch of color to the table, where the daintiest china and silver gleamed. Besides the ladies invited to meet Aliss Creighton, there were present Mrs. Creighton (her mother. were present Mrs. Creighton (her mother, who always travels with her), and her grandmother, a stately lady, who had come from Chicago to spend the week with her grand-daughter. EAST ST. LOUIS AND BELLEVILLE.

Special Assessment Cases-East Side News.

City Counselor Cockrell of East St. Louis has received a copy of the decision of the Supreme bench on the Broadway special asse cases. Judge McGruder of Chicago hands down the decision. It puts quite a different phase on the matter compared with the ruling of the bench as understood when the decision was first announced. At first it was understood that the cases had been remanded because the assessment was generally dispropor-tionate, but the city Counselor, after read-ing the decision, finds the ruling to be quite different. He understands that the assess-ments are generally sustained, the only ex-ceptions being in the cases of the persons own-ing property between Third street and the railroad tracks along the line of the eastern railroad tracks along the line of the eastern viaduct approach. It appears that the origirail assessment ordinance specified that the reconstructed street should be of uniform grade from the railway tracks to the Belleville turnpike, where the improvement ends. Afterward the viaduct ordinance was passed and provision made for an abuttmen or approach, beginning at Third street and running to the eastern end of the structure. This necessitated the raising of the street at that point to a grade somewhat higher than at first contemplated, and the buildings adjacent are now farther below the pavement. pacentare now farther below the pavement by several feet than they would have been had the original specifications of the ordinance been carried out. As the City Counselor understands the decision the assessment on the property alongside the viaduct approach is excessive, for the reason that the pavement is not to the same extent that the pavement is not to the same extent beneficial at that point as elsewhere, it being so much higher and possibly inconvenient. Therefore, the cases are remanded to the County Court for a readjustment of the as-sessment. City Auditor Kirk's opinion of the ecision is the same as that held by Mr. Cockreil.

In the City Court to-day Jacob Mozer was awarded a judgment by consent for $25 and John Mozer a judgment for $15 against Henry Geppert and others. THE STRIKE OF THE MONONGAHELA VAL-LEY COAL MINERS.

No Hope of a Settlement by Arbitration The Men Insist Upon the Half-Cent Advance—Trouble at the Chicago Stock

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 26.-Reports from nany of the up river mining towns indicate that there is now very little hope of arbitrat of employment and is paralyzing trade in the onongahela Valley. The leaders among the miners assert positively that the only basis upon which they will settle is the payment of the 1/2 cent advance. The operators from the beginning plainly said they could not pay the price demanded. As far as could be definitely learned the miners are strengthning rather than weakening in the struggle and a settlement seems afar off. The pools are filling up with empty craft, and this, perhaps, as much as anything else, gives the miners the impression that "coal is badly needed and makes them indifferent to the idea of compromising. As yet there has been no suffering among the miners, though a great many, it is said, are on the verge of it. If the miners go to work now at the old prices comparatively steady work would be assured. and a settlement seems afar off. The

SUICIDE BY STARVING. GEORGE HARRIS' FAST BRINGS HIM

TO DEATH'S DOOR. He Said He Would Take Food Provided
He Was Given All He Wanted to Eat—
His Relatives All at Ris Bedside—A

NEWBERN, Jan. 26 .- The thirtieth day of the strange fast of George Harris has almost ex-hausted his wonderful vitality, and it is now only a question of hours, instead of days, until his unnatural desire to die twenty-four hours, and that he had apells of restlessness in which it was necessary to change his position every few minutes. His pulse this morning was 83, but this is not accurate of a fluttering heart, which makes the pulsations irregu-CRAVES WATER. He craves water all the time and drank more than usual yesterday last night. Another sign by his weakness is detected, is his hard breathing, which now resembles gasps rather than natural breathing. During yesterday he was perfectly conscious and seemed willing to talk to anyone if he had strength to do talk to anyone if he had strength to do it. Yesterday he startled his attendants by saying that if they would give him all he could eat he would take it. But, knowing that in his weak condition this would mean sure death, his proposition was rejected. But his sister, Mrs. J. H. McDow, thinking he had repented of his rash act of suicide, made some heaf ten and offered it to him, but he days ago. As soon as the prisoner was re-leased two Missouri officials took him into custody. The officials left last night with the some beef tea and offered it to him, but he spurned it from him with the same determination that he did the first day of This fast. Interest in the case continues to increase throughout the entire community, and everything in regard to it published is read with great throughout.

MAY LIVE TEN DAYS. MAY LIVE TEN DATS.

The SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH, which contained the best account of this strange case that has yet been published, is in great demand at Alton and at this place. Mr. Wilson, his attendant, who has been watching Harris closely, says that he may live ten days longer, or he may not live an hour.

Watson left about midnight and as he was approaching the door of his employer's house a shot was fired at him by some one concealed in the shade of the porch, the bullet striking him in the forehead and inflicting a serious wound. Nash has been arrested, but he denies having done the shooting.

* Elizabeth was the center of attraction, and every one watched it with great interest. The cause of the excitement was the news that a 15-inch vein of ore had deen struck in the southern cross cut. The vein is not in the vicinity of the Bi-Metalle, and is supposed done the shooting. the vicinity of the Bi-Metalic, and is supposed to be the old Elazabeth veln which was not rich nearer the surface, but which may be more highly mineralized as depth is gained. No assays had been received at the main office, but all sorts of rumors, based on private information, were flying about the street. Some said that the ore was of low grade, while others reported that it ran as high as 50 cunces to the ton. Before the Mining Exchange opened no stock could be obtained below $2.75. The price on 'Change, however, was considerably lower, The first sales were made at $2.55, at which 600 shares changed hands. Bidding then rose to $2.57½, but after 200 shares had been sold dropped again to $2.55, at which 100 shares were sold. Brokers beemed to lose confidence, as 100 shares were transferred at $2.5½, and an equal amount at $2.50. For some time no trading at all was done, but as the hour for closing approached there was a sharp revival. Bids of $2.5½ were made, and after 700 shares had changed hands the price rose to $2.55. At that figure 300 shares were sold, 100 shares brought $2.57½, and the market closed with sales aggregating 600 shares were sold, 100 shares brought $2.57½, and the market closed with sales aggregating 600 shares at to be the old Elazabeth vein which was not rich

THE mixing of the World's Fair and force bill by a number of State Legislatures may be a bluff, and then it may not. The friends of the World's Fair in Congress will be on the safe side when they vote against the force bill.

THE force bill cranks have wasted so much of the Senate's time that the result that peasants were only fit for gunpowder will be disastrous whether they succeed in food and Orro merely takes a more direct passing the measure or not. The Republican party is bound to suffer either way from the folly of its New England bosses.

EDITORS who persistently assert that the Senatorship is bound to be the pigeon nole of Gov. THE amendment of the special jury law roposed by Representative RYAN is a good for legislation. The present law is in several respects. It may be used k injustice; it permits discrimination an rich and poor in the matter of ies and frequently operates as a source of useless annoyance to citizens.

WHEN the Connecticut Legislature reelected Senator PLATT, he received the votes of 141 members who represented 73,-144 voters, and the 134 members opposing at home. And yet, as his reason for supporting the force bill, Senator PLATTalleges that it is ied to enable the majority of voters to

A DECIDED ADVANTAGE.

The readers of vesterday's SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH had the advantage of the readers of the other Sunday newspapers. In the matter of local news they had

Among the most notable of these local "scoops" were the Clark elopement and the organization of the Adams Electric Railway Co. with a capital of $5,000,000 by prominent capitalists. As a matter of fact, in point of extent and accuracy of local news the SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH distanced its com-

There was not a particle of telegraphic ews published in the other papers which the SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH did not have, and its reports in a number of instances were fuller and more readable. It enjoys the advantage of exclusive reports from news sources not open to its competitors.

In that other field of Sunday journalism, the general reading matter, the superiority of the SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH was plainly onstrated. F. MARION CRAWFORD'S brilliant story, "The Witch of Prague," Bill Nye's letter in his best vein of humor and the host of bright specials in a great variety of interesting topics, made an entertaining melange which represented the highest class of Sunday newspaper read-

WHILE Pennsylvania derives her State revenue from railroads, the cost of municipal government is drawn almost exclusively from land, because only 5 per cent of the assessment under the law is personal property. Referring to this in his inaugural, Gov. PATTISON said: "There is not a citizen of the Commonwealth paying a tax upon his home or farm who cannot point to some neighbor owning many times as much in personal goods and idle capital who vet pays an immeasurably less amount of tax." The taxing power thus says to the citizen: "Invest your money in farming and you shall be taxed upon land, improvements, implements, live stock and produce, but invest in something more portable or more easily concealed, and it shall be exempt from taxation, or an easy way of evading assessment shall be provided for you." Will a Missouri Legislature composed principally of farmers consent to the perpetuation of a similar discrimination in their State? If they cannot themselves propose a better plan they should provide a Revenue Commission to devise and report a better system to the next Legislature.

THE purpose of Senator Espenchied's bill to exempt the briber from the penalty for bribery is said to be the necessity of making him a witness against the bribetaker in order to insure the punishment of the latter. But the proposed amendment would also give immunity to the offerer of a bribe and make unavailing the evidence transaction who first testifies against the other? It is difficult to mete out a punishment too severe for the man who accepts a public trust and betrays it for a bribe. We directors of the World's Fair project. should be loth to leave any loophole through which an official so guilty may escape. But the man who bribes, or tempts him with the offer of a bribe, is the first and worst offender in all such cases, and should invariably be made an example of, if possible. We shall never put an end o bribery till we make it more dangerous

THERE is something finely royal in the nadness of Bavaria's insane King, Orro, who finds his principal amusement in shooting peasants. The cartridges he uses are blank, but the peasants are instructed to drop when the King shoots, so that he enjoys all the delightful sensations of manhunting. It has always been a royal theory method of putting the theory in practice than his brother monarchs.

It is claimed that the disgraceful disclosures concerning silver speculation will prevent any further legislation toward securing freer coinage of the white metal. Will Congress submit to be debarred from desirable legislation because of the dishonesty of some of its members and of certain Government officials? Is it not the plain duty of Congress to legislate as it thinks est, and expose and punish all who abuse the privileges of official position?

The Crime Said to Have Been Committee in a Gambling House.

A story of alleged robbery, the circumstances connected with which are of a de cidedly peculiar nature, was told this morning in the office of Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Estep at the Four Courts. O'Donnell about 10 o'clock last night that they had been held up while in a gambling house on South Broadway and robbed of over $600. had been held up while in a gambling house on South Broadway and robbed of over $300. From the descriptions they furnished of their assailants Sergt. O'Donnell arrested Frank Witter and Cooney Helb, who spent the night in the Second District Polic Station. The prisoners admit taking the money but introduce a queer excuse. They insist that they were induced to play at a game of craps in progress in the house, and lost with remarkable ease. Finally they claim to have discovered that the dice were "crooked," being so constructed that they had no chance whatever of coming out ahead. They insist that they were then $250 behind and demanded the return of their money from Florian and Kiel. They were refused and took the amount from the men by force. Florian and Kiel allege that they were less than $250 ahead at the time of the robbery, insisting that other men carried money out of the game. They also deny in the most emphatic terms that they introduced any "crooked" dice, and insist that a gang of a dozen or more assisted Witten and Helb in the assault. Mr. Estep refused to issue the warrant on the evidence then at hand, advising the police to send the prisoners into the First District Police Court on the charge of gambling. If the testimony there submitted was sufficient to warrant a criminal action, the complaint would be filed. Witter and

It cannot be said that the audience thor-It cannot be said that the audience thoroughly enjoyed the performance. It was not that sort of a piece. There was some disposition to refer to it playfully as "Faust Out of Date," "Out of Sight," and otherwise flippantly, to indicate that the production was not "in it." The author certainly cannot be accused of extravagance in the expenditure of wit and humor on the burlesque. The great tragedy immortalized in poetry and music by Goethe and Gounod has been dragged into the valley of cheap mediocrity. and music by Goethe and Gounda has been dragged into the valley of cheap mediocrity. Of course the twist of Marguerite into a mock innocent, Faust into a modern masher, Valentine into a tough policeman and Siebel into a "kid" furnishes some low order of entertainment, and there are lines and gags here and there which are amusing, but there are long spaces of unrelieved duliness here are long spaces of unrelieved dulin

In the production also there is a dearm of attractive novelties and the performance, therefore, drags frequently. The fact is the forces are exceedingly light. The company is not the original organization, although there is perhaps little loss in that from all accounts. No better mock innocent Marguerite could be found than Kate Castleton, whose canabilities for the suggestion of demure capabilities for the suggestion of demure wickedness are unequaled. She practically played her Quaker character and sang her ld songs "For Goodness Sake" and "The old songs "For Goodness Sake" and "The Spider and the Fly" with the salaciousness of suggestion which constitutes her chief point of cleverness. John G. Bell gave dash to Mephisto and did his best to score all the points of which it was capable. He must be credited with good work. STANDARD—LONDON GAIETY GIRLS.

The London Galety Girls at the Standard The London Galety Girls at the Standard, with an excellent specialty show containing many new and bright features, scored a success at yesterday's performance, nearly every act being of a nature to bring down the house. Lesile's Irish comedy work, Lida Gardner and the Kenyons in songs, dances and in skipping-rope act, Nasmo, the juggler, and other features appeared to advantage. Mason and Titus gave a new act in their "shadowgraph show," which was a decided novelty. The Edgerton Sisters on the electric illuminated trapeze, made a hit and the performance closed with the burlesque of "Frincess Bright Eyes."

Clara Morris will open an engagement at the Olympic to-night in Sardou's "Odetto." This distinguished emotional actress is credited with having scored a triumph in the play, which was first produced by her at San Francisco a few weeks ago.

The small money lenders of St. Louis are

The small money lenders of St. Louis are much stirred up over the proposed legislation against their business. Mr. Espenschied has introduced a bill which repeals the clause making it a felony to sell mortgaged furniture. This, the time payment men allege, is solely for the benefit of dealers who will not sell on payments, and therefore detrimental to the interests of the poor, who are the ones who are compelled to pay in that way. Mr. J. B. Brolaski, who would be affected by adverse legislation against the money brokers, says that the lenders want regulation, and that the more exact it may be the better will be its operations.

"Let them pass a law," said he, "that will allow us to charge a certain per cent on a loan of $50 or less, a certain per cent on $100, and so on, until large amounts are reached.

loan of $50 or less, a certain per cent on $100, and so on, until large amounts are reached. The bills introduced at former sessions propose that a borrower of small sums shall not pay over $0 r 10 per cent per annum, while the fact is well known that nobody will lead it at these figures. If money is wanted and the borrower is willing to pay more in order to get it he is made a law breaker. If he cannot borrow on his belongings, they have little value; he is forced to get the money as he can, and may become a criminal. Persons outside of the larger cities can form no conception of the belongings, they have little value; he is forced to get the money as he can, and may become a criminal. Persons outside of the larger cities can form no conception of the necessity for small loans to the poor and middle classes occasioned by death in the family, sickness, loss of situation, the demands of a landlord, and the refusal of the butcher and grocer to grant further credit depriving the poor man of shelter and food for himself and family. At such a time immediate relief must vim, deep thoughts and plans for concentrated action. His remarks were very liberal in their tenor, and he paid high tribute to other religious organizations. The Bishop in opening his remarks said that he thoroughly appreciated the honor that had been conferred upon him in sending him an invitation to address the conference. His remarks were very interesting, and he said that he could not read a paper, but would that he could not read a paper, but would make a few remarks.

"I look upon everyone working in the Christian vineyard as brothers, no matter of what denomination. Every man is corded. Shelter and food should not be carboned in charlet, and I look upon the catholic workers as brethren in working for the glory of God. There is no distinction between the denominations. They are all working to the same end and for the glory of the same God."

This sentiment was received without a move on the part of the audience. After an introduction interspersed with beautiful sentiment, and compliments to the pastors of every denomination in the city, he announced his subject, "The Activities of the City Missions of the Churchest" The workers must introduce themselves by the Holy Ghost and love of Christ. Let the foreign missionary work be looked after first and then let the home work come in for consideration. He didn't believe that his church was doing what it should in relation to foreign mission work. Experience has shown that placed beyond the reach of the poor, and the therefore would suggest, and I believe that nearly all lenders will concur, that the House and Senate pass a resolution asking the St. Louis Bar Association to assist the brokers of St. Louis in framing an equitable law in relation to this matter. Or, if they desire, to appoint a committee from their own members to assist us in presenting the bill. The brokers to assist us in preparing the bill. The brokers stand ready to give every assistance within their power."

The members of the Master Builders' Asso ciation of this city are daily expecting from the Building Trades Council the new scale of of wages to go into effect May 1 next. of wages to go into effect May I next. As a consequence they are much agitated. The whole building trade is at a standstill, and will so remain, at least until the scales are received. Then their future depends entirely upon the demands made by the workmen. Should each organization, following the lead of the carpenters and whiteners, ask for better pay, a mammoth strike, to commence on Labor Day, may be expected. The unsettled outlook for the building business this season makes the situation even more serious than served. Family prayer is the one thing that can surely save the country. But beware of a union of church and state. Such a move is dangerous to the welfare of a people who are at present happy. Let the church do its work and likewise the state. Let the people not drift toward spiritualism, of which signs at times are shown. The machinery of mission work should be well put together, and the best men should be sent to the country work. But it is impossible to get them unless the cities, which do not need them so much as the country, will give up the best men. The city church can get along very well without a brilliant pastor, because the newly adopted scales are being held back. They say that now is the time of year when most of the conis the time of year when most of the con-tracts are made, and they, therefore, desire to see what the wages are that they will be compelled to pay. Workmen who belong to the organizations affected, when approached, said that the new scales would be forthcom-ing in good time. From another source it was learned that March is was the time set for the

> The strikers at the St. Louis Type Foundry are making strenuous efforts to win their fight against their employers. They are now seeking the support of the various other unions which are interested, and it is said that they have now virtually secured the support of the Typographical Union of this city. The Executive Committee of the latter organization were yesterday authorized to confer with Mr. St. John, and try and arrange some sort of a settlement. The type foundry now has contracts on hand which must be filled by Feb. 1, and which cannot be done unless men are secured to do the work. Mr. St. John has offered to take the men back as individuals, but not as members of any organization. He also demands that they sign a contract severing their connection with any organization with which they may be affiliated at the present time. The men are now very hopeful of victory, as the company's large foundry in Boston is operated by union men, who will not, they claim, fill the orders forwarded from St. Louis. This gives the men who are out great hope, and they therefore refuse absolutely to go back to work upon the old terms.

The Waiters' Union is again preparing for trouble. The organisation has slipped a number of their members into the various restaurants without the knowledge of the proprietors, and now claim that they are prepared to make another demand. Nearly every prominent restaurant in the city is affected and the trouble and bad feeling may be brought out at aimost any moment.

The various unions of carpenters hold their meetings to-night. Matters of vital importance, but which the members refuse to make public, will come up for action.

CRUSADERS' TRIAL.

How the Thirty-Two Ladies of Lathrop Were Acquitted.

ONE OF THE MOST REMARKABLE COURT ROOM SCENES EVER WITNESSED.

Gov. Chas. P. Johnson Returns From the Plattsburg Trial and Describes Its Picturesque Features—He Accompanied the Freed Crusaders Back to Lathrop-A Grand Ovation.

Lawyer Chas. P. Johnson returned to St

Louis from Plattsburg, Mo., via Lathrop yesterday morning. The difference between the present age and the golden era of chivalry and knight-errantry was never illustrated with greater emphasis than in the nature of that return. Had Gov. Johnson lived in the latter, instead of alighting from a train at the Union Depot, gripsack in hand, and quietly boarding a street-car for home as he did yesterday, he would have halted at the gates of the city, and, reining in his flery charger while his armor glittered in the sunlight, the doughty armor glittered in the sunlight, the doughty advocate would have waved aloft a lance from which fluttered the colors of thirty-two matrons and damsels rescued from threatened captivity and ignominy. After performing this little preliminary spectacular act the Governor would have gloriously entered the city, and beyond all question have borne thenceforward the proud title of the "Knight of the Lathrop Crusade," placing upon his knightly shield a quartering showing a fearless malden, rampant, knocking the smithereens out of a bottle of whisky, couchant. He would have had a right to do all this, because he had just secured the unconditional he had just secured the unconditional acquittal of that brave band of Lathrop ladies who wrecked the famous Acoff-Ward dive in Lathrop last February, and who have been in hot water ever since on account of their bold and picturesque

Gov. Johnson was seen at his office this morning by a Post-Disparch reporter, and characterized the closing of the trial of the women crusaders as the most remarkable scene it has ever been his fortune to witness in a court-room. The last phase of the great case, ending in the most dramatic form of virtue triumphing over vice, and persecuted femininity routing its persecutors amidst a grand chorus of applauding townspeople, the curtain falling on the glare of a bonfire built directly in front of the ruined and dismantled dive where all the A PICTURESQUE TRIAL the ruined and dismantled dive where all the trouble started, a village brass band filling every cubic foot of air with its pastoral piping, and Gov. Johnson on the train platform receiving the congratulations of the assembled multitude, is full of picturesque possibility worthy almost of an artist's brush and rich in descriptive tempta story of the Lathrop crusade is well known to need recapitulation at its close; how after long-suffering patience unclose; how after long-suffering patience under the malignant spell of an unlicensed satoon tempting their husbands, fathers, sons and brothers to drink, the ladies of Lathrop, thirty-two in number, went to the saloon in a body one bleak February day, burst open its doors, invaded its mysterious domain, broke open beer kegs, whisky barrels, wine bottles, demijohns and deluged the streets of Lathrop with the contents of those vessels; how the ladies were arrested on a charge of malicious trespass and made to tremble under threats of all sorts of legal punishment; how the of all sorts of legal punishment; how the crusade finally tinged the political atmosphere of Lathrop; how it was somewhat weakened by the domestic unhappiness of one of the crusaders, Mrs. Carmichael, getting into the courts, to the great delight of the ungodly and bibulous public and how towards it close the process. public, and how, towards its close, the pros pett grew so threatening for the crusaders that only a Knight of the Holy Grall could rescue them from the latter-day dragon, known as the saloon influence. The scene of the rescue was laid in Plattsburg, to which place the case had gone on a change of venue. and it took just four days of a legal tourns nent to disarm and rout the enemy, the trial

CHARGED WITH MALICIOUS TRESPASS. The suit, on a charge of malicious tresspass and willful destruction of property, brought against the thirty-two ladies of Lathrop by one Thomas J. Ward, the pro-prietor of a billiard hall in front of the dive kept by one "Tom" Acoff, Ward claiming that on the night preceeding the famous raid Acoff had transferred his property to him, Ward, to secure a debt, and that he was therefore the innocent sufferer by the crusade. The trial went along on this line, the prosecution, conducted by Prosecuting Attorthe fact of trespass and destruction of property, and the defense, represented by Chas. P. Johnson of St. Louis and Judge Thos. J. Porter of St. Joseph, making no effort to disprove the story of the raid. The entire ground was gone over in the evidence produced during the four days at Plattsburg, some twenty-five witnesses being examined in all, the prosecution leaving no detail of the famous raid uncovered. The full enormity of the offense committed by the revealers, was shown in the blocket colors. crusaders was shown in its blackest colors and the picture of the woeful waste of Lathr 'booze' was drawn with a fervor that would have wrung the bosoms of a 'tomato-can' origade with unbearable anguish and soulfal

During the four days' hearing thirty of the thirty-two crusaders were present in the Plattsburg Court-house. Two of the martyr band had been excused from attendance, but the leaders of the great Lathrop movement were there with their faithful lleutenants and scouts gathered about them. They had come from Lathrop in a body, escorted to the train by the entire population of the town, and they got together in the court-room. There were Mrs. Kinney, the President of the Lathrop Woman's Protective Association, who started and led the SCENES IN THE COURT-ROOM. Association, who started and led the Association, who started and led the crusade; Miss Bickel, the Secretary; Mrs. Carmichael, one of the ladies whose husband has since sued for a divorce; Mesdames Henderson, Elligs, Maret, Brooking, Jones, Smith, Boring, Beauheart, Brookes, and so on through the muster roll of the band of smith, Born the fluttering with petticoats and not a word of evidence escaped the apprehensive ears of the ladies so deeply concerned in the final verdict. Besides the brightening effect of this flood of the feminine element in the court-room the scene was also made more striking in color by an absolute femining striking in color by an abundance of floral striking in color by an abundance of floral tributes sent to the crusaders and the perfume of flowers filled the air. At one point of the taking of evidence a dramatic scene occurred. One of the crusaders was on the witness stand, and had spoken of the evil influence exerted by the Ward-Acoff dive.

"There has never been any one killed in a brawl, or murdered, or badly injured in the place, has there?" asked the prosecution.

"Possibly not," came the quick response.
"But women's hearts have been broken, and homes destroyed and family happiness wrecked by the power in ambush in the place," and a brave burst of applause from granted that the crusaders had done all that was charged against them, but demanded their acquittal on the grounds that the present sult was not brought by the owner of the property destroyed. It was proved that on the very day preceding the raid made by the Lathrop ladies, seven indictments had been returned against Acoff by the Grand-jury on charges of running. an unlicensed saloon; that at 9 o'cleck that night he had transferred his property to Ward, who kept the billiard hall through which the saloon had to be entered; that the transfer was made to escape the consequences of these indictments, and was an act of collusion between Ward and Acoff, and that if any prosecution were to be made it must come from Acoff, the real proprietor. Gov. Johnson's closing speech delivered on Friday last was confined almost exclusively to this line of defense.

"The veriest horsethief would be acquitted of the observed by the control of the control of "The veriest horsethief would be acquitted of the charge brought against him," said the eloquent lawyer in concluding his argument, "even if the heft was proved, said the eloquent lawyer in concluding his argument, "even if the heft was proved, could it be shown that the prosecuting witness was not the owner of the horse. How much more are these ladies entitled to acquittal, when what they did was done in defense of their homes, of their children, and of public and private morality."

SCENE FOLLOWING THE ACQUITTAL.

In forty-five minutes after leaving the In forty-five minutes after leaving the Court-room the jury, composed of sturdy farmers and country store-keepers, returned with a verdict of acquittal. Thirty ladies arose "as one man," waving handserchiefs in the air, shaking hands with one another, and laughing over their deliverance from legal peril. They were surrounded by the Plattsburg ladies present at the scene, and the occasion became one of the wildest feminine enthusiasm. Ward, the prosecuting witness, disappeared from the prosecuting witness, disappeared from the court room with all the discomfiture proper to the last act of the famous drama, and Gov. Johnson became the central masculine figure of the scene. He was the lion of the crusade and could have been nominated for president as easy as falling off a log. From the court-room the crusaders went to the hotel and Gov. Johnson went with them. The afternoon was but a continuation of the wild scene immediately following the acquit-tal, and at 7 o'clock the "Sayed Crusaders" tal, and at 70'clock the "Saved Crusaders' took the train for Lathrop, leaving the victorious field of Plattsburg amidst a demonstration such as that quiet town had never witnessed before. Gov. Johnson was still with them. An hour later they arrived at Lathrop, the famous scene of the famous crusade. They were met at the depot by the Lathrop Drum Corps and Band, a large delegation of citizens and nearly all the feminine population. A huge bonfire, built feminine population. A huge bonfire, built in front of the melancholy wreck of the in front of the meiancholy wreck of the Ward-Acoff dive, reddened the night sky with its significant flare, and the thirty crusaders were welcomed home with shouts and huzzahs that spoke eloquently of the popular indorsement of the great crusade.

GOV. JOHNSON'S FAREWELL.

Hon. Gov. Johnson left them safe at home cleared of all taint of the awful charge of ma-licious trespass, freed from the law's delays and the wearying experience of hope de-ferred that has followed them since Feb. 13, 1890. He was not allowed to part company, however, until the crusaders and their town people had testified to their apprecia-tion of the "crusade advocate." He was made to appear on the platform of his car and was given a levee that could only be ter-minated by a speech, in which the St. Louis lawyer reviewed the famous case in outline and sent the "Lathrop Crusade" thundering down the ages with all the eclat properly be-longing to it. When the train pulled out from the station, with Gov. Johnson still on the platform and the crusaders' handkerchiefs waving in the night air, the curtain may be said to have fallen on the story of the "Great Lethrop Crusade." Gov. Johnson does not elieve that the story will be reopened in the

TEXAS FLOUR RATES.

PROSPECT THAT THE DISCRIMINATION AGAINST ST. LOUIS WILL CEASE.

The Texas Railroads to Be Asked to Place Wheat and Flour on the Same Footing— Causes and Effects of the Discriminat

The question of grain and flour rates to Texas, which has long been a subject of dis-satisfaction to the St. Louis millers, may be settled to their satisfaction within a short time, at least a strong effort will be made in that direction, and those who have the matter in charge believe the prospects of an argunent are most excellent. All that the St. Louis millers ask is that wheat and flour be placed in the same class on Texas lines.
UNFAIR DISCRIMINATION.
This is the practice in all other parts of the country, and is admitted by all lines except these in Texas and their connections. The present freight rates, which impose a higher tariff on flour than on wheat, result in a dis-tinct discrimination in favor of the Texas millers at the expense of those of Missouri and Kansas and are admitted to be unfair. The matter has been fully discussed at sev-eral railroad meetings and the Missouri and Kansas lines expressed their perfect willingness to place flour and wheat on the same footing, but the Texas lines refused to do this, finally admitting that their sole object in retaining the present classification was to protect the Texas millers from outside competition. A case was finally prepared and presented to the Interstate

AN APPEAL FOR JUSTICE. The best legal advice has been taken, and it is believed that the rating is a violation of the interstate commerce law. It is the opinion of many that the Texas railroads themselves now take this view of the situation and are ready to give up the discriminating rating before they are compelled to do so. At the meeting to be held in this city on Thursday to consider the acceptance. hursday to consider the question of through and way rates in reference to the Galveston trade, the question of wheat and flour rates will be brought up, and St. Louis millers are hopeful of a favorable decision. The causes that led to the present discriminating rates are peculiar. Several years ago there was a short crop of wheat in Kansas and Mis-souri, and a phenomenal yield in Texas, The few Texas mills then in existence made money fast, and a great eal of land that had been sowed in othe crops was planted with wheat. There was a rush of capital for investment in flour mills, and their number in Texas were in a single year increased between four and five fold. But it shortly became evident that they could not be operated at a profit. The Texas wheat crop never equaled or approached the phenomenal yield, while the output of Missouri and Kansas resumed its former proportions. This left a great majority of the Texas mills with nothing to do, and i ecame evident that they would prove a total which would shut off competition EFFECTS OF THE TARIFF.

The railroads were interested in the new mills, and when appealed to came to their aid. Wheat and flour had previously been and. Wheat and nour had previously been handled at the same rates, but it was decided to lower the freight on wheat and increase that on flour. The effect of this was to place the Missouri and Kansas millers in a disadvantageous position as compared with those of Texas Not only could the latter charge their flour, but they could also their flour, but they could also draw the wheat necessary to run their mills from South ern Kansas. By imposing a high tariff or flour, the mills in the neighborhood of con suming points could charge enough to render their operations profitable, but in order to enable those located in sections of the country where the wheat crop was gene-light to carry on operations it necessary to lower the rate wheat in order to enable them obtain a supply. It is against this that the protest is made. Not only are the Missour and Kansas millers and farmers dissatisfied with the rates, but the Northern Texas farmers and consumers demand a change.

GENERAL DISSATISFACTION. The farmers claim that by the discrimina tion in favor of Kansas wheat they are pre-vented from selling their crop at a fair price while the consumers naturally object to being obliged to pay high prices for their flour solely hat a few mills may be operated at a profit The St. Louis millers do not demi the rates on flour be lowered, but ask that wheat and flour be placed upon the same basis. If this is granted the trade with Northern Texas will be very greatly increased. The Texas millers stand alone in desiring the preservation of the present rates, and it is pre-dicted that they will no longer be successful in maintaining them.

Fifteen of the Bids for Sprinkling Reported as Too High.

A CALL FOR NEW BIDS TO BE MADE AT ONCE.

Action Taken by the Sprinkling Committee of the Board of Public Improvements To-Day-The City Can Order the Old Lamp-Posts Down-Separate Conduit for Ball Telephone Wires.

All of the members of the Board of Public mprovements attended the meeting of the reet Committee on Sprinkling. those already awarded. The City Can Take Them Down.

The Council Committee on Public Improve ments has before it now two ordinances, each of which was introduced for the purpose of securing the privilege of using the lamp-posts for advertising signs. It was necessary to secure permission from the city before the signs could be put up and also to secure the right to use the posts from the Laciede Gas

One ordinance was introduced by E. W. Beach, Edward White and Wm. B. Swan, and the other to Samuel Herring, Henry Snow and associates, under the name of the St. Louis Illuminated Advertising Co. Both bills were practically the same, but the committee release of the one of Reach and White and it was referred back. The bill is now placed only on lamp posts at street intersec-tions. On each of these signs must be conspicuously the name or number of the streets Mr. Vogel, chairman of the committee, said Mr. Vogel, ehairman of the committee, said to-day: "I see no reason why we should not grant that privilege and we certainly are in a position to control the matter without difficulty. In return we get street signs which will be plain to see and durable, instead of these filmsy, tin things now in use." City Counsellor Bell was asked if the city could, if it so desired, order the lamp posts down, and said that the city could certainly do so when it so The Street Commission and the embers of the board seem to look kindly on the plan and do not think that any trouble

Delayed in the House.

The House of Delegates Committee on Railpads is taking its own time about drawing up its report on the St. Louis and suburba bill. The chairman of the committee called eting for last Friday afternoon and notified the projectors to appear. All of the gen-tlemen interested were there promptly and ready to answer questions, but the members of the committee were not. There were not enough of them to meet, so nothing was done. Another meeting has been called for

The bill was passed in the Council in a hape entirely fair to the city and to the company and there is no reasonable excuse for the action of the House in the matter. Much of the success of the remodeling of the road depends upon the early passage of the bill and the House is merely delaying public needs

Must Have a Separate Conduit. provements are trying to find out why the Assembly does not take some action in the matter of the Bell telephone conduit ordinance. Mr. Burnet, in speaking of the bill, said: "It is reasonably certain that if the State Legislature passes the electric bill the Bell Telephone Co. will have a separate conduit. Their system can not be operated any other way. So there is no reason why they should not be granted a franklise now. With ald not be granted a franchise now. With the Bell telepone out of the way we could make arrangements which would reduce the make arrangements which would reduce the wire troubles to a minimum. Their bill now is only unreasonable in one particular, and that is where it demands unlimited free telephones for the city. With that section out I phones for the city. With that section out i think the company would accept the bill and rid the business end of the city of a great nuisance. The bill is hung up in the Assem-bly now waiting for some one to start it.

POLES AND TELEGRAPH WIRES BROKEN AND RENDERED UTTERLY USELESS.

there were only one or two telegraph wires in the city which could be operated. Wires and poles were wrecked on every side, and while poles were wrecked on every side, and while the snow was not deep enough to ob-struct traffic, between the snow and the wrecked wires it was a hard matter to get about. All the arc light currents had to be shut off because of the danger. The storm belt extended from Philadelphia to Boston and all the wire service in that section was injured. The loss of poles was something very unusual, there being hundreds of them broken and wrecked.

THE SITUATION TO-DAY. THE SITUATION TO-DAY.

New York is still isolated this morning, telegraphic communication being only partially restored. The Postal Telegraph Co. is without a single wire west, and the Western Union company has but one in working order. Large forces of men are at work clearing the Large forces of men are at work clearing the streets of failen poles and broken wire. By order of the Mayor all electric companies have been obliged to suspend operations, but not before a number of persons had been killed by coming in contact with the broken wires. The whole force of police and fire department are doing patrol duty to guard against fire as all the fire alarm wires within the city are still down. The streets are ren-dered almost impassable by fallen poles and tangled wires. NO WIRE SERVICE EAST.
CHICAGO, III., Jan. 26.—Telegraph service to the East is seriously impeded to-day owing to the severe sleet storm that prevailed yes terday in New York, Pennsylvania and Southern New England States. The storm has prostrated the wires east of Pittsburg, and there is not a wire working east of Albany. Telegraph business between Chicago and New York to-day is at a standstill.

COMPLETE DISORGANIZATION.

Never but once in the history of the telegraph has there been such a complete disoranization of the system as that caused by the great Eastern storm of Saturday and As far north as Boston, yesterday. As far north as Boston, west to Albany and Harrisburg, and south to Baltimore, wires are down, poles are stripped or broken and communication is more or less cut off. Western Union officials in this city say that though the wires to New York, Boston and Philadelphia are badly fork, Boston and Philadelphia are badly crippled yet they are better off than any other section of the country. Chief Operator Holligan of the Chicago office said at noon that Chicago was the only point from which New York got newspaper telegrams for this morning's papers, and these went by the way great extent. Our wheatstone is all right "The great blizzard of 1887, I think, was great extent. Our wheatstone is all right, and this with the other three wires we have, will at a pinch do the business between this city and the East. Telegrams to the Chicago office of the company present a picture of horror in New York after the snow began to freeze last night. The falling of poles across the streets and idewalks, and the wires stretched all over the surface of the city made it extremely dangerous for people to be out. The falling poles had broken down most of the gas-lamps about the city, and the danger of setting fire to property made it impossible for the electric light companies to try to make light. The occasion must have approached the panic pictured by the destruction of Pompell Poles fell across dwelling houses or across treets with their tops through abutting vindows. People, in the intense darkness, hought their homes were falling and rushed to the streets only to be met by a web of wires and mountains of snow. Street cars of all descriptions were stopped and business of every variety was suspended. "Of course," said Chief Operator Holligan, "the breaking of the poles was due to the mmense weight of snow upon the wires. The whole trouble was caused by the fact that the storm was high up over the earth. Snow formed at a great height and in a cold atmosphere, and, falling into a warmer current of air just above the earth, became wet and stuck to whatever it touched. It is get ting warmer in the storm territory and un doubtedly before night most of the snow will have melted from the wires and the men will be able to see the breaks."

HEAVY SNOW AND RAIN. FALL RIVER, Mass., Jan. 26.—A very heav snow and rainstorm prevailed here until o'clock yesterday afternoon, accompanied by very heavy tides. The sound boats had a hard experience around Point Judith, but arrived safely, although somewhat late.

TELEGRAPH WIRES DEMOLISHED.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 26.—Boston was visited by a heavy snowstorm yesterday. High winds accompanied it, and the result was that the telephone and telegraph wires were badly demoralized. Ninety telephone and telegraph poles, bearing 100 wires each, were broken.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Jan. 26.—"The snow was so thick that it was like a fog and drove so hard that it cut the skin," is the report of the Pennsylvania railroad men. A number of small freight wrecks are reported. The demage to property by the storm is large but damage to property by the storm is large, but no losses of life are reported. Throughout no losses of the are reported. Inroughout the state of Jersey the trains are obliged to feel their way, as every wire's prostrated. 67. The secret possessed by these bewitching grandmothers is partially a lost art. One thing is certain. It did not lie in any use, skillful or unskillful, of paints, powders and artificial plumpness. Breenness of heart and sprightliness of mannir must have had much to do with it. Rare mintal charms also were no doubt possessed by all the examples cited. It should be observed, however, that it is not always a safe experiment for old ladies to affect youthful manners. Unless they have consummate skill they are likely to make themselves ridiculous, Moreover, it is not necessary for them to do so.

"A St. Louis Charity."

From the New York Sun.

A meek-eyed, mild-spoken man dropped around to the hotel in st. Louis one evening last fall, and as fast as he came to any one whom he had sized up as "safe" he said:

"It is a case of charity—a noble charity—but we are opposed to anything like a subscription. The widow wouldn't have it that way, you know. We have, therefore, arranged for a ten-round go betweet the Missouri Terror

It seemed a sort of duty to go around with It seemed a sort of duty to go around with the crowd and pay the admission fee. The affair was to come off in a barn, and when the principals entered the ring there were sixty-two of us dollar men present. They shook hands, "put up" in good shape, and the knowing ones predicted a hot time. At the first punch the Terror made, however, the other fell down, seemingly unconscious, and after working over him for five minutes the meek eved man stood up and said:

A Mother Pleads for Recognition From

This afternoon Judge Klein heard a con tested divorce case, Joseph Waser vs. Jose in the corridor before the case was called.

Mrs. Waser had not seen her two children for some weeks, as since her separation from her husband they have been in his custody. The children, aged 7 and 5 years, were brought into the corridor by a relative of their father. They passed their mother without noticing her. She called to them, but not regarding her they went on. The mother burst into tears. A number of friends crowded about the children and begged them to speak to their mother. From the New York Times.
In the ethics of fashionable life, carriage etiquette occupies a prominent place. One of the several things supposed to indicate whether a woman is born in the purple, or at least accustomed to carriage life, is the way in which she leaves and enters her vehicle. She should have one foot cut and firmly set upon the carriage step before she relinquishes the sitting posture; then the body should follow, easily and naturally. Nothing is more awkward than to see a woman thrust her head forth first, and then find herself forced to double up to accomplish the rest of the exit. Watch one who knows how gracefully sink her weight from one foot to the other, almost without losings perfectly perpendicular position, securing instantly a walking poise as she touches the ground, and the difference between her method and that of another who lands very nearly in a tumble on the sidewalk will be discernible.

From Faris the dictum comes that in acting as hostess a woman should enter her carriage first, seating herself so that her guest sits at her right, which place of honor she must not omit indicating to her guest as such. When the host is a man, however, the guest enters first and should take a place at the host's right. This, of course, is in reference only to cases where both host and guest are merely riding together. If the host, either man or woman, is driving, his seat is always the proper driving one. A ridiculous combination of gallantry and ignorance is occasionally seen, usually at summer resorts, where a woman driving a whether a woman is born in the purple, or at Market closes at 3 p. m.

Cattle—The market was active to-day and 10@15c higher than Saturday's close on all grades of good to choice cattle, such as cows, blocky steers and heifers. The demand was stronger than the arrival could fill. Common to medium cattle sold steady at last week's prices, but rather slow. The representative sales to-day were: Description. cows and heifers

212 retail from $1.75 to $4.50.

Hogs—The hog market to-day was active and generally stronger. Receipts were considered pretty fair for the opening day of the week, but all of one-half of the receipts were of the light to common kind Good to choice grades sold at $3.50 to $3.70, common to fair packers at $3.25 to $3.50 and skips and-culis at $3 to $3.25. Everything sold early and the market closed steady to strong. The representative sales to-day were as follows:

He also having been harvested. Trken as a whole, the wheat crop just secured may be regarded as fully up to an average, and there is no doubt but that liberal shipments are now being made from there to the United Kingdom.

The latest mall advices from France in regard to the auturn-sown grain report that: "The soil is congealed to a great depth, so that the plants are enveloped in ice under the frozen snow. Such a condition cannot but be prejudicial to the crops. In March and April the extent of the mischief occasioned will be known; meantime it will be requisite to plough up and resow a number of the wheat fields, particularly the last sown, that is to say, where the grain has failed to germinate, the ground being in too frozen a state.

Hog products dull. Receipts of hogs continue heavy. F. G. Logan & Co. consider the control of the market.

Corn was strong early, in sympathy with the advancs in wheat, but had a sharp break as soon as the stimates of large receipts for to-morrow were an ouncied. The trade was dull, and it its evident from he action of the market that, there are very ew shorts. This is a weak feature and we do not believe that much further advance is possible. Provisions opened strong and higher, but the market was very dull, and in the absence of buying orer gradually sagged and closes lower than Sauray. There was no sensational trading and packers eemed to be out of the market.

PECULIAR BUSINESS METHODS EM-PLOYED AT AN OLIVE STREET STORE.

You Draw Your Coupon at 5 Cents a Draw and Purchase According to Its Dictates

The Plan Which Is Causing Complaint. An establishment known as the "Novelty Store'' is being operated at No. 902 Olive street, and complaints concerning the place have been received at this office.' A Post-DISPATCH reporter called up there to-day to investigate the methods of doing business employed at the store. He found the show-windows store. filled with framed pictures, watches, chains, plated ware and jewelry, and signs in profusion announcing that any article in the store could be purchased for 30 cents.

HOW THE SCHEME IS WORKED. On entering the place, however, he saw other signs stating that coupons were sold at 5 cents a piece and that by paying another 25 cents the holder of the coupon could purchase any article in the lot in the show case chase any article in the lot in the show case whose letter corresponded with the letter on the coupon. Along the entire length of the store was stretched a show case which was divided into apartments, each of which was denominated by a letter hanging above on a wire, such as "A" "B" "C" "D" "L" "D D D" and so on, some being single while others were double and triple letters. There were also lettered pictures strung along the wall. One sign hanging on the wall explained to the intending purchaser that ten of the 5-cent coupons entitled the holder, free of charge, ing purchaser that ten of the 5-cent coupons entitled the holder, free of charge, to his choice of any article. In any of the departments whose letters corresponded with the letters on any of his coupons. Some of the departments contained watches, pictures and platedware of the cheapest kind, but still all articles worth more than 30 cents a piece. hese things were scarce, however, and most of the cases were filled with pocket knives, jewelry and various other trinkets, scarcely worth taking away. Many of them would be dear at 5 cents a piece, yet in all cases were small cards explaining that with a 5-cent coupon whose letter corresponded with that of the case any article in the lot could be purchased for 25 cents. Additional information was also contained on the card as to what the retail price of the articles in the case were—75 cents aplece, $1 aplece and so on, none of them being as cheap as 25 cents. Therefore, according to the stated retail price a man was bound to be the stated retail price a man was sound to be the gainer by purchasing a coupon, as he could get articles worth 75 cents or $1, or in some cases a great deal more for 25 cents. REPRESENTATIONS MADE. In a corner of the store near the entrance sat a young man in a cape overcoat and at his feet was a round basket filled with small this feet was a round basket filled with small envelopes containing the coupons. This young man cried out in the tones of a circus fakir, for the people to step in and examine the goods, explaining all the while that it was no game of chance or no lottery, and that there were no blanks in the envelope, but all contained coupons which entitled the person getting them to purchase for 25 cents some article in the store. To this man was the reporter referred when he asked to buy something. This man explained the method of purchase as the signs on the wall did, and added the fact that there were no blanks and it was no lottery or game of chance. You bought your coupon and by paying another 25 cents any article in the department whose letter corresponded with that on the coupon. In case you did not desire to purchase any article in the department you were not compelled to do so, and by buying nine other coupons you would be given free of charge any article in any of the departments whose letters corresponded with any on your coupon. These coupons would also be taken back at any time the departments whose letters corresponded with any on your coupon. These coupons would also be taken back at any time at the store at the rate of 5 cents apjece for the purchase at retail price of any article in the store, so there was no chance for a purchaser to lose anything. When asked what assurance buyers had that there were coupons in the basket calling for any of the more valuable articles in the store the man said that they would produce people who had drawn articles in any of the departments, and they would also bet any person who doubted them is to stitute there were coupons in the basket for every department of the store.

The reporter purchased a coupon. He drew "N. N." It left him but little choice in the selection of articles a little knife, fork and spoon of the cheapest and least serviceable kind being the only articles in the department. The clerk at the case explained that they were very fine and "solid white metal all the way through." They would last forever without losing their resemblance to silver. The reporter paid 25 cents to secure very fine and "solid white me all the way through." They would last ever without losing their resemblance silver. The reporter paid 25 cents to see his valuable prise and carried it triumphan back to the office. He might have difficult in inducing anybody else to pay him 5 ce for the outfit; but he knows they are vuable, for the clerk told him so. Treporter remained there awhile watch others try their luck in drawing coupons, saw nobody get anything that the ser would have been willing to exchange cents for if he was out bargain hunting.

A BURGLAR CAPTURED. James Taylor Arrested While Attempting to Enter a House. Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Estep issued a warrant this morning charging James Taylor with attempted burglary in the first degree. The defendant is a burly negro. About 1 o'clock yesterday morning he was caught by Officer Platzer of the Central Disin the very act of entering the residence of Mrs. Margaret Nelson, 1826 Olive street. He had almost succeeded in removing a panel from the front door when dectected. A search of his apartments at 907 Biddle street revealed two umbrellas, several pairs of kid gloves and a quantity of jewelry, all of which is supposed to have been stolen. Taylor is a notorious burglar and thief. He has served three terms in the Missouri Penitentiary for burglary. About eight years ago he was arrested by Detective Stewart for burglarising a residence on Pine street, between Twelfth and Thirteenth streets. THE WINNING JOCKEYS.

MARTIN BERGEN HEADS THE LIST FOR THE YEAR JUST CLOSED.

Growth of Amateur Athletics in America The Foot-Ball Situation Locally—An Interesting Base-Running Test—Pugilism, Base Ball and Other Sports.

A summary of the work done during the year 1890 by the leading jockeys on the American turf has been compiled. Martin Bergen heads the list with 179 wins. He rode in 794 races. Taylor comes second with 131 victories out of 527 mounts. Then comes Lambley, who has 124 victories to his credit. He rode who has 124 victories to his credit. He rode in 814 races—more than any other jockey in the country. These three men are the only riders who had as many as 500 mounts during the year, and Lamley and Bergen, it will be seen, each rode in nearly three hundred more races than Taylor. Anthony Hamilton, rider for the Belmont Stables, who was married in this city last one Cornelius Fife, a street fakir in hand luck, has been lounging about the place. Kain took an interest in the man, fed him when he was hungry and only about a week ago put a new overcoat on his back. This morning, however, he went to the office of Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Estep and swore out a warrant charging Fife with burglary in the second degree and larceny.

The cause of this change of heart is Fife's ungratefulness and treachery. It seems that last night when the barkeeper, Archie Pitman, closed the saloon Fife was asleep in one of the chairs. He pleaded that he had no place to go and the barkeeper took him to his room at the Erte House, 6ie Market street. As soon as his benefactor was sound asleep Fife rose and went to the saloon. He entered the place through a cellar coal hole and forced the door leading to the saloon. He then secured $16$ from the cash drawer and packed up about a dozen boxes of cigars. These he carried to Pitman's room and hid under the bed. races, but won 12 of them, and Isaac Murphy, with only 38 mounts, has 13 victories to his credit. Garrison rode in more races than any of the Big Four—McLaughlin, Garrison, Murphy and Hamilton—with the exception of the last named. "The Snapper" had 196 mounts and landed 47 of them winners. Such men as these, however, should show good averages, as they rarely ever ride any but crack horses. This was particularly true of Murphy and McLaughlin last year and Hamilton had the advantage of being head jockey for the best and most successful stable in the country. Garrison really had more poor for the best and most successful state in the country. Garrison really had more poor mounts to handle than any of the other members of the quartette. Donohue, a rather noted jockey in the East, only had 42 mounts and did not score a solitary victory. He is the only rider in the list of whom this is true. Fitzpatrick had 12 victor-les out of 65 starts and old man Hayward rode in 75 merce, winning 5 times. rode in 75 races, winning 8 times. Hathaway piloted 17 winners out of 84 mounts and Stoval 21 out of 299 mounts. Taral had 471 mounts, landing 98 of them winners. The

BASE BALL.

There has been a great deal of talk about base-runners being able to steal second on a battery even if the pitcher holds the runer ganization was not yet quite ready for such a move. The authorities will be consulted this week and a plan of work arranged. A committee of 100 is made up of some of the best citizens of Columbus, but since the saloon men threatened retaliatory measures, there has been a diminution of zeal on the part of the guardians of the public welfare. first-class battery if the pair work well to-gether. This was shown conclusively by Buck Ewing at Cleveland last fail. Jim Quirk and Billy Boyd, two of the fastest runners in the country, were training last season at the Cleveland Brotherhood Park when Buck made the test. He allowed both Quirk and Boyd to take flying starts from the foul line. His pitcher did not make a motion to pitch until the runner had crossed first base and was on his way to second at full speed. Buck's quick throw nailed both of them as fast as they tried it, although both men have records better than "even time."

THE BATTING ORDER.

To a casual observer, the arrangements of players of a team in the batting order does not seem to be of much importance. Only those initiated in the fine points of the game know how much the batting order has to do with a team's success. There is always some difficulty in finding the right man to lead off in the batting. He should be a good waiter, a hard hitter, a fast base runner and possess cool judgment. One of the best men in the country to open at the bat is George Gore of the New Yorks. He combines all these virtues the New Yorks. He combines all these virtues and has been very successful. At one time last season he reached first base no less than sixty-three consecutive times either on a base hit, an error, or a base on balls. This is a wonderful record. He used the same bat all the time, and nothing could induce him to change it while his good luck continued. Finally he played four straight games with-out getting to first, and then he changed to

FOOT-BALL.

The Blue Bells practically won the local foot-ball championship when they defeated the Shamrocks yesterday afternoon by a score of 1 to 0. The heavy rush line of the Blue Beils pushed the Shamrocks' goal-keeper through the goal four times, and their work won the game. There is considerable complaint on the part of the Shamrocks over the meaner of their defeat and they have the manner of their defeat, and they have issued a challenge to play any football team in the city, the Blue Bells preferred, for from

THE WHEEL.

The January meeting of the Rochester Weeelmen's League was held early in the week, says the New York Sun. There were present delegates from all the association clubs, who, by a unanimous vote, decided to appoint a committee to consider the advisability of sholding the next New York State division meet in Rochester. Among other important business considered was the idea proposed by C. J. Ivens for the holding of a road race between Buffalo and Rochester annually. Mr. Ivens' views were expressed at the League meeting as follows:

"Little difficulty would be experienced in the successful solicitation for prizes, in view of the fact that the affair is to be a national one, and the distance seventy-four miles, an

As road racing will be a prominent feature this season the adoption of Mr. Ivens' idea would secure entries from cracks all over the country, who could not fail to make the event an interesting one. So well was the matter received that it is very probable that the league will see that such an event is officially wede an appual feature. made an annual feature.

ATHLETICS.

According to the New York Tribune there is considerable ill-feeling existing in the ranks of one of the oldest and wealthlest athletic clubs in the country. That paper says:
The members of the New York Athletic Club The members of the New York Athletic Club are already discussing the outcome of the next annual election of the club, although it does not take place until March 10. That the two hostile factions will be arrayed against each other, as was the case last year, seems assured. Last year Jennings 8. Cox was the GROWTH OF AMATEUR ATHLETICS.

The structure is to be four stories world. This is simply sentor J. B. Pollard spent Saturday and Sunday with his family in Ferguson. He will sunday with his family in Ferguson. He will sunday with his family in Ferguson. He will sunday with his family in Ferguson. letic club-house in the world. This is simply another straw that points out the direction that public favor is taking in the promotion of amateur sports throughout the country. There is a day coming when the recommendation of Col. Robert G. Ingersoll, in his remarkable Delmonico address on amateur athletics, will be verified; when the establishment of gymnasiums and athletic grounds in connection with every college and school throughout our broad land will be an assured fact. Amateur sport is certainly an assured fact. Amateur sport is certainly growing, and growing fast at that. Nowa-days it is no unusual thing to see palatial athletic club-houses erected one after another. I can hardly count the number of ama-teur athletic associations that are being organized every month, every week, every day, and I may say every hour, in different sections of the United States. The bank clerks are organizing athletic associations, the steamship companies' employees are holding games, the Liederkranz Society and other social executions are promoting ameters. cial organizations are promoting amateur athletic sports at their annual outings. There is hardly a branch of business that is not encouraging, through its employees, one form of amateur sport or another. The day is not far distant when every little town will have its annual amateur athletic meeting, which will be a yearly fixture, at which will be seen in attendance the men and women of the vi-SPORTING NOTES.
